NAZIS RESUME RAIDS AFTER WAR'S WORST NIGHT ATTACK

AXIS-DIRECTED BALKAN PEACE PARLEYS OPEN

Hungarian and Rumanian Diplomats Confer Separately with Ribbentrop, Ciano.

By The Associated Press

VIENNA, Aug. 29—Hungarian and Rumanian delegations, brought to this capital of old Austria by Axis "peacemakers," communicated the suggestions of Rome and Berlin for a Transylvania settlement to their governments today after separate two-hour talks with German and Italian foreign ministers.

German spokesmen said "from various signs it can be presumed that, perhaps tomorrow, concluding results will be reached."

The Hungarians, Premier Count Pal Teleky and Foreign Minister Count Istvan Csaky, and the Rumanians, Foreign Minister Mihail Manoilescu and his aides, had not yet come together in a four-power roundtable to discuss any proposed new frontier. They held separate talks with Joachim Von Ribbentrop and Count Galeazzo Ciano, the German and Italian foreign ministers.

Really Hostile

But, even as the delegates converged here, Rumania formally accused the Hungarian air force of "real acts of hostility" in air clashes over their border and announced officially she was adopting a policy of "force" to repel any Hungarian incursions.

Hungary countered with charges the Rumania air force was sending planes on reconnaissance flights over her territory.

Recent incidents on Rumania's border with Sovit Russia also appeared to figure in the situation. There was plainly apparent an air of urgency in the suddenness with which today's conference was called.

Admit Divergence

Germans acknowledged the recent negotiations at Turnu-Severin showed Rumanian and Hungarian viewpoints to be so divergent that "no immediate, direct understanding" could be reached—despite the desire of the Axis to settle the problem speedily in order to give undivided attention the war with Britain.

However, Germans denied they intended to "arbitrate" the dispute. They repeated their insistence the Axis does not intend to dictate a settlement, but rather will do its utmost with suggestions and advice to both sides to adopt a conciliatory attitude to help them arrive at a compromise.

Wants Restoration

Hungary is demanding restoration of practically everything Rumania took from her as a result of their World war treaty, or approximately five-sixths of Transylvania.

Rumania, on the other hand, is said to desire to begin a settlement by shifting respective national minorities, with cession of a narrow strip of territory to be considered later.

Royalty Arrives in United States

After a perilous voyage from Petsamo, Finland, the American transport American Legion arrived in New York with more than 800 refugees from the European war. Among the passengers were Crown Princess Martha of Norway and her three children. The children, left to right, are, Prince Harald, 3, Princess Asirid, 8, and Princess Ragnhild, 10. Standing in rear, at right of the Crown Princess, is Carl J. Hambro, ex-president of the Norwegian parliament. (Associated Press Photo.)

House Group Calls for Bill To Draft Men from 21 to 44

Increases Age Limits Over Version Passed by Senate; Vote Due Next Week.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Aug. 29—The house military committee approved today a Burke-Wadsworth conscription bill calling for drafting of men from 21 to 44 years of age, inclusive—a much wider range than that provided in the bill which the senate passed last night.

The house committee acted quickly after senate passage on a 58 to 31 vote so that its version of the legislation might be brought to the floor Tuesday for possible final house passage late next week.

Chairman May (D-Ky) said the house committee vote approving the bill was 20 to 4. Other committeemen said four members actually were absent from the session but three voted by proxy. May declined to say how individuals balloted.

Discuss Senate Limit

At one point, May said, there was some discussion of a proposal to make the registration and conscription age brackets conform to those of the senate's 21 through 30 years but the matter never came to a vote.

Another point of difference into the two bills is that while the senate provided a limit of 900,000 on the number of conscripts who might be serving at any one time, the house committee wrote in a 1,000,000 limit. Members said that figure was necessary to provide also for conscripts for the navy.

The committee authorized May, he said, to request two days of general debate by the house plus unlimited consideration of amendments. House leaders previously had decided on Tuesday as the date for starting consideration.

May also reported that the committee deferred until Tuesday action on a proposal that a senate-approved amendment authorizing the President to take over private defense plants be recommended to the house also.

The chairman said Rep. Brooks, (D-La) made the proposal, but the question was deferred when Rep. Smith (D-Conn) offered a substitute designed to protect operators of businesses which might be taken over for defense purposes.

Resembles Senate Bill

The house bill contains many provisions like those if the senate measure, including sections bearing on exemptions and deferments.

Like the senate legislation the house bill also contains a section limiting use of the guard to the western hemisphere and American possessions.

After three weeks of stormy debate, the senate gave its approval to conscription last night at the close of a tense, 8-hour session.

The bill, as passed, was substantially unchanged in its essentials from the version originally recommended by the senate military committee. One major addition would give the government the power to "conscript" industry for defense, if necessary.

The victory was expected to hasten the action of the house military committee on a somewhat different version of the bill which it is considering.

May Start Tuesday

Debate is tentatively scheduled to start Tuesday and forecasts were that it would consume at least four days. Proponents of conscription were optimistic that the bill would be passed, and opponents privately conceded that chances of defeating it were slim.

Fifty Democrats and eight Republicans voted for the conscription bill in the senate. The 31 opposition votes included 17 Democrats, 10 Republicans, 2 Farmer-Laborites, 1 Progressive and 1 Independent.

Ohio's Senators Taft, Republican, and Donahey, Democrat, voted against the bill. They also voted against a proposal to conscript industrial plants for defense.

Main Provisions

The conscription bill, as passed by the senate, contained the following major provisions:

1—All male citizens or pros-

By The Associated Press

LONDON, Aug. 29—Nearly 200 German planes were turned back from London late today by British fighter forces and fled to sea in the southwest without dropping any bombs.

This was the high spot in widespread daylight forays with which the Germans followed up their greatest night attack of the war—a night in which thousands of incendiary and high explosive bombs wrought destruction, death and injury in all parts of England and Wales.

To match the wide-ranging German attacks through England and Wales, the air ministry announced "extensive raids on military objectives in Germany, Holland and enemy occupied France" last night.

The ministry said that "several important targets in the Berlin area were heavily bombed."

First In Southeast

The renewal of German raids on England came in the southeast this afternoon, before the 200-plane attack was attempted and a little later raiders were reported over two Welsh towns.

The first report of daylight activity today came from an inland town and said merely that German planes had appeared.

The night had shielded countless bombers in their shuttling forays over England and Wales.

Civilians were killed in all of some 20-odd areas which were hardest hit. Nazi bombers staged the longest sustained attack of the war on London itself, lasting seven hours.

Some sections of the country were attacked by single planes, while others apparently were raided by successive waves of 18 and 20 bombers.

"Sea of Flames"

(A surprise dive attack this morning made "a sea of flames" of the great naval base at Portsmouth, and a "desert full of craters" of a nearby airport, the official German news agency reported.

(German observation plane pilots reported a dense pall of smoke covering Liverpool, Chatham and other ports attacked.)

(Berlin had its longest and worst air raid of the war as British bombers crossed and recrossed the German capital, and sprinkled explosive and incendiary bombs but two miles from the chancellory, starting many roof fires and craters.)

Despite the great number of attacking Nazi planes only one of them was reported shot down during the night's operations, a bomber over a southeast area.

Not Just "Nuisance"

In the London area, where the raiders seemed to mean business—this was no mere "nuisance raid"—bombs were dropped both by single planes and by small waves of planes.

Fires were started in several London suburbs. In one district, more than 80 incendiary bombs fell but 1,800 civil defense workers on duty smothered them before they could do any damage.

In another London section, three bombs were dropped simultaneously, one landing on top of a shelter and blowing it out of the ground, killing four members of one family who had taken refuge there.

In still another section of London high explosive bombs demolished a number of workers' houses. In another road 100 yards away, several buildings were badly damaged. Police erected barricades, stopped all traffic and ordered residents to move.

Lasts Over 7 Hours

London was under alarm seven hours and 10 minutes. The raiders

BERLIN, Aug. 29 — British bombers' roaring high over the German capital for nearly three hours in a pre-dawn attack, took a toll of 10 dead and about 30 wounded today in a workers' section less than two miles from government offices in the Wilhelmstrasse.

All the casualties were civilians.

While an early-morning automobile inspection tour appeared to bear out the authorities' statement that no military objectives of consequence were hit, army officers, firemen and police hastened to Kottbusser street, in the southeastern part of the city, where the chief damage was done.

Probe Time Bombs

The officers took technical notes; the firemen fought blazes started by incendiary bombs, and the police investigated reports the British had loosed delay action missiles which might go off hours or even days after they were dropped.

Through arrangement with the propaganda ministry, three American newspapermen, including an Associated Press correspondent, were taken on a two-hour tour. They visited Kottbusser street and also were taken to whatever potential military targets they wished to visit.

Such places as Tempelhof airdrome, where civilian planes were being warmed up; the Klingenberg power plant, which supplies half of Berlin, and railway stations all were undamaged. It was impossible, however, to cover all possible points of military importance on the flying trip, but the only damage the correspondents saw was to dwellings and pavement.

Dozen Bombs Fall

In one block in crowded Kottbusser street, where the dead included a woman and a 16-year-old girl and three other persons killed in one building, about a dozen 100-pound high explosive bombs and an even larger number of incendiaries apparently fell.

An air raid warden directing people to shelters literally was cut down, a bomb fragment severing both legs. The dead and injured were on the sidewalks or in doorways. Incendiary bombs set fire to three flats at the same moment. Other incendiaries, dropping into a gaping hole ripped in the roof of a building by a high explosive bomb, started fires throughout one house.

TWO IN FAMILY WIN AT FAIR

Steers Shown by Marion Co. Brother and Sister Get State Awards.

A Marion county brother and sister this week carried off championships with their Hereford stock at the Ohio State fair.

Naomi's entry, a year old in March, won first place in its own breed and on Tuesday was judged grand champion of all breeds in the junior fair cattle division.

Congratulated by Bricker

It was a big day for Naomi.

Governor John W. Bricker was on the grounds and when he heard that a girl's entry had been judged grand champion, he went straight to the judging ring to congratulate her personally on her victory. Flash bulbs popped and camera clicked. Naomi and her steer were the center of attraction.

In addition to the prize money offered by the fair she will be awarded a handsome trophy on Friday. The trophy is offered by the Kroger Grocery & Baking Co. in the 4-H club division of the junior fair.

$5,000 FIRE BURNS BARN NEAR MORRAL

12 Pigs, 2 Tractors Lost in Brewer Farm Blaze.

Special to The Star

MORRAL, Aug. 29—Fire, believed to have been caused by spontaneous combustion, destroyed the barn and an adjoining shed, farm machinery, grain and some pigs on the Harry Brewer farm one mile southeast of here shortly after 8 o'clock last night. The loss, estimated at more than $5,000 is partially covered by insurance.

Mr. and Mrs. Brewer were attending the state fair at Columbus, and the blaze was discovered by George Watts, a neighbor. Neighbors and passing motorists formed a brigade and succeeded in saving the residence and a number of outlying buildings.

Fourteen tons of hay, 12 pigs, two tractors and other farm machinery were destroyed.

Extensive Program of Repairs In Marion Schools Nears Completion

Painting, Cleaning and Work on Floors Among Series of Projects in Charge of Custodians.

Renovating of Marion's public schools in preparation for the opening of the 1940-41 year on Sept. 9 is nearing completion.

While teachers and pupils have been vacationing the work of repairing and redecorating the schools has been going on throughout the summer under the direction of Levi Welch, new superintendent of buildings and grounds, assisted by his corps of custodians.

This summer's program, one of the most extensive in years, has attempted to meet the most urgent needs in each school. Some of the requests were made by Parent-Teacher associations, some were the results of visits by members of the board of education and some were made following an inspection tour by Supt. E. E. Holt in company with Mr. Welch.

Custodians Make Repairs

Except in a few instances where schools have a janitorial staff large enough to accomplish the 1940 program, such as Harding High school, Mr. Welch has divided the custodians into groups and completed the work in a minimum of time.

At Harding the offices of Principal O. H. P. Snyder and Miss Elizabeth Pace, secretary, have been painted, the first floor corridor has had a new coat of paint, all the rest rooms have been painted, three of the class rooms have been refinished, the machine shop in the vocational department has been painted and relighted with fluorescent fixtures and furniture in two rooms has been changed to facilitate teaching.

In the front building at Central Junior High school all seats have been refinished and one class room has been redecorated. In the rear building, all seats have been refinished, all of the woodwork has been repainted, floors in the corridors have been replaced in several places and two class rooms have been redecorated.

Floors Resealed

Terrazzo in the corridors of Thomas A. Edison Junior High school has been resealed and all other floors have been refinished. Work on the grounds has included the replacing with new blocks all broken blocks in the sidewalk.

An arrangement of double seating in the study hall at Vernon Heights Junior High school has been replaced by single rows of desks. All plumbing on the hot water heating system has been renewed, floors of five classrooms have been refinished, the terrazzo flooring in all corridors has been sealed and refinished and a new roof has been built over the shed which houses the many bicycles used by the pupils.

Review of Work

Following is a resume of the work done this summer in the elementary buildings:

Silver—New toilet equipment and drinking fountains installed throughout the building; new floors laid in all corridors; furnaces torn down and rebuilt; new rest room installed on first floor; all windows repaired.

Pearl—Six classroom floors resanded and refinished; terrazzo in corridors sealed and refinished; all rooms repainted; all windows repaired; roof retreated with coating; playground covered with fine stone.

Greenwood—All walls washed; new toilet equipment and drinking fountains installed throughout the building; seats in four classrooms refinished; all corridors refloored; worn stairtreads replaced; all classoom floors repaired; furnaces completely overhauled.

Forest Lawn—New toilet equipment and drinking fountains installed throughout the building; furnace for heating basement replaced by new equipment.

Olney—All corridors and steps repainted; four classroom floors sanded and refinished; basement redecorated.

Oakland — All windows recaulked.

MRS. LOVETT HURT IN CRASH

Former Marion Teacher and Two Other Women Hurt Near Richwood.

Special to The Star

RICHWOOD, Aug. 29—Mrs. Dorothy Lovett of Magnetic Springs, a former music teacher at the Silver Street school in Marion, was seriously injured in an automobile accident north of here at 11 a. m. today.

The extent of her injuries was not immediately learned. She was unconscious and was removed to a Columbus hospital by the Winter & Son ambulance of Richwood.

Mrs. Lovett, until recently a music teacher in the Richwood schools, was driving north and her automobile figured in an accident with a car driven by Mrs. Laura Young, 71, of near Richwood. Mrs. Young, according to highway patrolmen from the Marion sub-station, was making a U-turn on the highway in front of her farm home.

Mrs. Young and a sister-in-law, Miss Vella Young, 65, who was accompanying her, suffered lacerations and bruises. They were treated by a Richwood physician.

HOUSE SEEKS PROFIT TAX PASSAGE TODAY

Restrict Oratory in Effort To Speed Bill.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Aug. 29—Invoking procedure regulations so drastic that the call of "gag rule" was heard, the house took up the complicated excess profits tax legislation today with leaders intent on driving it through to passage by nightfall.

House leaders agreed to restrict sharply both debate and amendment offers in an effort to assure speedy action on the measure which has been urged as vital for faster progress in the defense program.

Designed both to prevent "war millionaires' and to grant tax concessions to defense industries, the bill has three major sections:

It would levy an excess profits tax of from 20 to 50 per cent on corporations;

It would permit defense industries to deduct from their taxable income over a 5-year period the entire cost of facilities installed to handle army and navy contracts;

It would suspend existing limitations on the profits to be made on government orders for aircraft and warships.

Rep. Cooper, Democrat of Tennessee, one of the bill's managers, estimated that it would yield $300,000,000 in 1940 and $900,000,000 annually thereafter.

1,850 Take Part in Annual Picnic of Huber Company

Second annual picnic for employes of the Huber Mfg. Co. was held yesterday afternoon at Lincoln park. Approximately 1,850 attended, participating in an afternoon program of games and contests. A picnic supper was served.

Competition ranged from a "husband calling" contest to a series of tug-of-war between picked squads selected from the plant and office personnel. One of the highlights was a softball game between Perry's White Sox and Dick Weller's Bats. The Sox trimmed their rivals, 18-7.

E. J. Schroeter, president and general manager, captained one of the shop tug-of-war teams. His quad lost and each member was the recipient of a can of spinach, while those on the roster of the winning club were presented with neckties.

Winners of the various individual contests, listed in the order in which they placed, follow:

Sack race, Jack Sayre, Charles Cline and Lawrence Wilson; husband calling contest, Mrs. R. Gorrell, Mrs. Carl Lesser and Mrs. E. Coulson; balloon breaking contest, Harold Crabtree, boys' division and Angela Sayre, girl' division; shoe contest, Eugene Sens, boys' division and Catherine Hicks, girls' division; football passing, Miss Dorothy Klingel, Mrs. E. Cowgill and Mrs. Earl Sayre; backward race, Virginia Allen, Noma Allen and Donna Rowland; horseshoe pitching, M. L. Harruff, M. Roseberry and G. Wilson; nail driving, Mrs. Houseworth, Mrs. E. YOUR HEALTH

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

Beware the Amateur.

IF LET ALONE by the power politicians and war-mongers, the world would move forward. One little field in which improvement has been so rapid as to have entirely changed the picture in a quarter of a century was called to my attention by a worker who has devoted his life to its development. That is the field of eye conservation in industrial occupations.

He cites the improvements as follows.

First in importance, he says, there are far fewer amateur shop oculists—the kind who use toothpicks, matches, pocket-knives, flat screwdrivers, dirty handkerchiefs and other infection-bearing devices to remove particles from the eyes of injured fellow-worker. First-aid rooms with doctors or nurses in charge have become the rule rather than the exception during the past quarter-century, and the workers have learned the danger of infecting infection in even the most trivial eye injury.

The installation of exhaust systems to draw off poisonous gases and dusts which are injurious to the eyes, ventilation and air-conditioning are also notable improvements.

Industrial lighting has become an expert field of applied science. This has contributed to sight conservation and to the general health of the worker by preventing conditions that result from eye strain.

A study was made of the employes of two New York City post offices—one modern and well illuminated, the other old and with inadequate lighting. The contrasts were often so striking as to strain credulity. In the well-lighted office 12 per cent of the employes were found to have inflammatory or irritative conditions of the eyes or eyelids; 21 per cent in the poorly-lighted office. In the well-lighted office 22 per cent had ocular muscle unbalance, in the ill-lighted office 33 per cent.

There are many remaining problems in eye conservation in industry—the most pressing being the hazard of the growing use of poisonous chemicals. But, as I said above, the whole picture is changed from the callous indifference that was displayed by employers to these conditions a scant quarter-century ago.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

J. L.—"I have had pompholyx for three summers and would like to know what causes it and what is a cure for it."

Answer—Pompholyx is described as itchy blisters. It is an old name. The condition is probably ringworm. Treatment is by Whitfield's Ointment.

J. L.—"What causes water brash and what remedy could I use?"

Answer—Water brash is the regurgitation of acid contents of the stomach into the mouth. It is due to increased acidity of the gastric juice. The remedy is an alkali such as baking soda.

M. R.—"Do sedatives cause one to have hallucinations? I mean barbital and other medicines taken in capsules for mental nervousness. Do you recommend this?"

Answer—Barbital is very likely to cause hallucinations in middle-aged people. I would certainly not recommend this unless it is ordered by a doctor.

Biggest Lab in World Loses First Science-Wise Director in Wallace

By STEPHEN J. McDONOUGH
Associated Press Science Writer

DES MOINES, Ia., Aug. 30—Henry A. Wallace was the first scientist to direct the world's largest scientific laboratory.

For that is one aspect of the post which Wallace left for his new job — Democratic candidate for vice president—of which he is being formally notified here today.

The department of agriculture employs more men and women working in pure and applied science than any other institution in the world.

More than 5,000 research projects, many of which will develop new methods, products or processes of direct benefit to the American people are now underway in Washington and in the experiment stations scattered throughout the country and in Alaska, Hawaii, and Puerto Rico.

Nothing Too Small

Their studies range from expeditions to far corners of the world to find new plants to studies in atomic physics—the behavior of tiny particles of matter within the atom.

Nutrition, the chemistry of growing plants, development of better clothing fabrics, studies on new drugs and treatments for disease, work on the causes and cures of human and animal diseases, and a hundred other lines of research come within the scope of the department's activities.

Wallace came to his post as secretary with training in mathematics, astronomy, meteorology, economics, chemistry, botany, and genetics—the science of inheritance in plants and animals.

As an economist and editor of "Wallace's Farmer" he began warning farmers 20 years ago of a serious drop in prices of farm products, of over-inflation of farm property and a collapse of the stock and grain markets in about 1920. He worked out his prediction on a mathematical basis from current trends in the post-war years.

Saw 1940 Depression

In 1934 he made a similar prediction in his book "New Frontiers," declaring that the next depression would probably start in about 1940.

"There probably will be a serious food shortage over the entire world beginning sometime during the next ten or fifteen years," he said, "and the shortage once definitely started will continue for a number of years, with an intensity varying, of course, with the weather."

He became an astronomer, going back to fundamental college courses, when he wanted a knowledge of the possible effects of the sun and the planets on the earth's weather. He also went back to college to take advanced courses in mathematics — the result of which was an elaborate study called "Correlation and Machine Calculation"—a fundamental work on statistical analysis.

Later he published a similar volume "Agricultural Prices"—a volume on the coordination of various market and weather factors in predicting the possible income of farmers—and a second volume of corn-hog ratio charts indicating market prices on the basis of corn supplies in relation to the number of pigs on Iowa farms.

Notes on Genetics

His principal scientific interest has been in genetics, an interest dating back to experiments as a 15-year-old in the breeding of better corn. As a result of that interst he directed a worldwide study of all the knowledge available on genetics when he became secretary of Agriculture and had the results published in two volumes of the department of agriculture yearbooks — a tome of 2,000 pages.

He has been the most prolific author in President Roosevelt's cabinet. In addition to "New Frontiers" he has published "Whose Constitution", a study of the application of the constitution to modern conditions, a book on religion and numerous magazine articles and pamphlets, one of which "America Must Choose" outlined American foreign trade policy as a choice of "internationalism, nationalism, or a planned middle course."

In the latter he declared that "America dislikes to choose" its economic course "but she will have to choose or she will eventually sink back into a situation worse than that of 1932....I am convinced that if once the American people were fully informed of the facts of the post-war situation (the 1920's), and were willing to act accordingly, it would be possible for us rapidly to move into almost unimaginable prosperity."

Marion's triplets, June, Jene and Jane Cratty, who were three years of age this month, were photographed this week with Governor and Mrs. Bricker at the Governor's office in Columbus.

The three little girls were taken to Columbus by Mrs. Myrtle Hemminger and her daughter, "Miss Iris Roberts, of 665 Woodrow avenue, who have been actively interested in the little girls' welfare since birth.

It was decided to visit the governor's office and ask for his picture with the girls. Gov. Bricker was there with Mrs. Bricker, preparing to leave for a tour of the Ohio State fair.

The executive and his wife graciously consented to the picture and posed with June seated between them, Jane on the governor's lap and Jene being held by Mrs. Bricker. Governor and Mrs. Bricker thought the three little girls were "very nice," Mrs. Hemminger said in telling of the visit.

Last year Miss Marilyn Meseke, "Miss America, 1938," posed with the little girls. Mrs. Hemminger said she hopes to build up a collection of pictures of the triplets with personages. They are the daughters of Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Cratty of North Greenwood street.

A recording device has been invented to be attached to one leg of a bed to show every movement made during a night by a sleeper.

MARION CHILD ILL; MAY BE INFANTILE PARALYSIS

Spinal Fluid Sent to State Authorities for Test.

Dr. M. M. Weinbaum, city health commissioner, yesterday afternoon quarantined a West Side home pending tests to determine whether a two-year-old boy living there is suffering from infantile paralysis.

This morning a specimen of spinal fluid was taken and sent to the state health department in Columbus for laboratory examination. The results of the test probably will be learned late this afternoon, Weinbaum said.

If the illness from which the boy is suffering proves to be infantile paralysis it will be the city's second case this month. A two-year-old Lee street girl became ill from the disease two weeks ago. Her condition is not regarded as critical, the type of infantile paralysis from which she is suffering not being among the worst forms.

DALLAS, Tex., Aug 29—Political forces of this rock-ribbed Democratic state split today over the new deal's third term movement and whether Wendell Willkie is to carry Texas in November. Headed by Mike Hogg of Houston, son of the late Gov. James Stephen Hogg, the No Third Term Democratic party of Texas was formed last night.

No False Security

ALIEN registration, now under way, is a sound precautionary measure. It will give government a needed measure of control over aliens. It also will furnish a certain amount of information, hitherto missing, about the alien population of the United States.

But to the extent that registration is expected by some citizens to provide security against activities of aliens unfriendly to the United States, a very small minority, it is a snare and a delusion. Hostile aliens—the kind the government needs to be protected against—will not be handicapped by the formality of registration.

Effectual borers from within, if they happen to be aliens, will take pains to be properly registered. Or, if they don't find registration convenient, they will take pains not to be caught. Any person in the United States sufficiently interested in hostility to its ideals to participate in organized hostility is not likely to let his hands be tied by the formality of registration. Contrary to the notion of alien baiters, furthermore, the most dangerous agents probably aren't aliens at all, but duly accredited citizens. The registration law, capable of doing much good, shouldn't be allowed to contribute to false security.

Bermuda

UNLIKE THE pin points of land in the Caribbean, Bermuda is unrelated to defense of the Panama canal. Establishment of an American base there by agreement with Great Britain would be solely for the purpose of defending the United States itself. Bermuda—a fact often forgotten—commands New York harbor as completely as it commands Charleston, S. C. It is on the route to all South American ports on the eastern coast and lies close to the route from Europe to the Pacific ocean. No nation understands its usefulness to control the sea and air approach to the United States better than Great Britain, which has used it for both purposes.

Strangely enough, Bermuda is unfortified, except for a small naval station. If it should fall into the hands of an attacking nation, a hostile air force would be within striking distance of every point on the Atlantic coast from Florida to Maine. Recapture would be a difficult and costly project. Properly, the United States is taking steps to eliminate it, therefore, as a source of temptation. Logically, military control of Bermuda can repose only in the nation whose safety depends on it.

Gothas to Stukas

STORIES WHICH seem to view air raids on London as novelties are misleading. This isn't the first taste of German aerial ferocity for the world's largest city.

The World war produced immediate German threats to destroy London. Zeppelins were expected to perform this grisly act, but the first actual attacks were made by airplanes. First German projectile hit English soil Dec. 24, 1914, but material damage was not done till early the next summer. London was bombed first the night of May 31, 1915. The Germans had abandoned planes for zeppelins, which they continued to use during 1915, 1916 and part of 1917. During the latter part of the war they were using "Gothas," then the most formidable heavier-than-air machines in existence, the World war counterpart of the highly publicized "Stukas" in the present war.

British air defense, starting from nothing but intentions, steadily improved till at the end of the war raiding was impracticable. Nevertheless, Germany held the whiphand throughout the war; Great Britain and France carried out some retaliatory raids on German cities, but without conspicuous success. They failed to acquaint Berlin with the terror of aerial raids. According to Encyclopedia Britannica, 1,310 persons were killed and 3,000 wounded in all of England by German bombers. Close to 600 deaths occurred in London alone. Approximately 9,000 bombs were dropped. While these totals appear insignificant compared with estimates of the damage being done now, they are a reminder that Germany's ambition to scatter death over Great Britain can not be blamed on the injustices of the Treaty of Versailles or anything which has happened in the last 25 years. For years before the beginning of the World war in 1914, German militarists were laying the plans which another generation today is putting into effect.

Gone are the Zeppelins and Gothas, but the "Stukas," "Dorniers," "Messerschmidts," and "Heinkels" have taken their places.

News Behind the News

Political Motive Seen in Administration's Reopening of Bridges Deportation Case.

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, Aug. 29—The way the administration has suddenly turned from protecting to pursuing the obstreperous west coast labor leader, Harry Bridges, has confused even the congressmen who have been on the inside of the long and bitterly fought case.

A New Deal commission, headed by orthodox Dean James Landis of the Harvard law school, reported against deportation. Labor Secretary Perkins cancelled a warrant for deportation. Attorney General Jackson told the senate immigration committee the exclusion of Bridges would be "unAmerican." But now the same Mr. Jackson has announced he is sending J. Edgar Hoover out to California to see if this "unAmerican" thing should be done.

Paul Mallon

News gleaners have been able to find two explanations for the turnabout on the Bridges front. It seems Mr. Bridges and certain other C.I.O. officials have been severely criticizing the administration foreign policy and opposing the draft bill. Bridges' agitation against the defense program has caused fear in some administrations quarters that troublesome strikes may develop among his followers. Then too a bill is pending in the senate (adversely reported by the immigration committee) recommending a congressional investigation or deportation—a matter which will probably have to be held in abeyance until after the election now that Mr. Jackson is reopening the case he had closed so forcefully.

If the New Deal can hold the deportation noose around Mr. Bridges' neck until the necessity for keeping him quiet has passed it may never need to draw the rope taut.

Draft Bill Outlook

Mr. Roosevelt was fully assured in private before he left town that the draft bill would skim through the house without serious trouble. Floor Leader Rayburn reported to him that he had sufficient votes to adopt the senate form of the bill without further quibbling.

The southern congressmen who have been in and out of White House favor every other week were counted on to save this measure for the President as they saved the Hull reciprocal trade agreement program. Constituent mail, at first sharply disapproving the draft, has swerved the past 10 days around to approval.

Anti-Trust Delays

Cat calls which New Deal congressmen are emitting at Mr. Jackson for having delayed an oil anti-trust suit, were prompted loftily. Among those who definitely do not like the delay is Mr. Jackson's own assistant attorney general, Thurman Arnold, in charge of anti-trust prosecutions. Mr. Arnold has many friends in congress who are able to get the facts regarding delays from his division when they ask for them.

Loophole Fades

Congressmen who thought they exempted themselves from the draft may have left themselves liable legally through a loophole no larger than a gunsight.

Their new law exempts executive, judicial and "legislative officers." Certain legal authorities in the war department, if asked, will hold that the legal definition of "legislative officers" includes only the speaker, the sergeant-at-arms, and officials in charge of administering the senate and house, thus excluding the rest of congress.

No one has told them about it yet.

Bottleneck Plan

Jesse Jones may be able to handle the commerce and lending departments, but he is the only man in government who could do it. Jones has a peculiar personal management system. He has established himself as the only bottleneck in departments he controls. By careful organization he allows subordinates to complete the details of every case before it is brought to him. No one else makes decisions. He reaches them swiftly and conclusively. Even all publicity in the RFC and later the lending administration must trickle through the top.

Campaign Ammunition

The defense commissioners have half an idea that their rosy defense statements are being used too enthusiastically by the administration for political campaign purposes, are mumbling and grumbling, but do not know what to do about it yet.

There seems to be practically no one happy in Washington today, maybe that is why Mr. Roosevelt left.

Security at Sea Called Best Plan of Defense for United States.

By WALTER LIPPMANN

MANY a man has been wondering whether the United States could not be defended more easily if we were not interested in defending so many places over such a large area of the earth's surface. There is a certain apparent logic in the argument that American security could be insured with fewer warships, less airplanes and a smaller army if we did not commit ourselves to defend Canada and South America, if we took no interest in China, the Philippines, and the Netherlands Indies, if we decided not to care what happened to the British Isles, or at Gibraltar in Greenland, in the Azores, in the Cape Verde Islands, or in the harbors and airfields on the West Coast of Africa. The argument is that by taking an interest in so many places we have assumed burdens that compel us to arm more heavily than would be necessary if we decided to defend only the actual territory of the United States.

Walter Lippmann

The argument is as plausible as the notion that the earth is flat, and for many the answer is as difficult to grasp as the proof that in spite of appearances the earth is not a flat surface but a globe. Yet it is the truth that the easiest defense of the United States, for the least expenditure of military effort, is defense based upon control of the two oceans in the midst of which lies the great island continent of the Americas. The greatest fallacy of the isolationist senators, most of whom come from the central interior region of our continent, is that they do not see that much the best defense of America is to control the seas. Because they do not grasp the fundamental fact that America can most readily be defended on the oceans, they think quite sincerely but mistakenly that we are adding to our burdens instead of diminishing them when we take an interest in everything that affects the control of the two great oceans.

Canadian Defense

Consider for example, our commitment to defend Canada, and let us ask ourselves whether in making it we have increased or have reduced the difficulty of defending the United States. Suppose that as isolationists we had the courage of our convictions and were to declare that Hitler may, if he can defeat Britain and conquer Canada, that so far as we are concerned we shall fight only if he sets foot on our soil, sends warships into our territorial waters and bombers into our air. Suppose then that he does conquer Britain, sinks or captures the British navy, and with no fleet to oppose him transports five armored divisions and two thousand planes to Canada. Remember that as isolationists we do not object, that as isolationists we do not "entangle" ourselves in other people's wars. Remember, too, that if that is our policy and if Britain is defeated, it is fully as easy for a European army to come to Canada as it is for a Canadian army today, or was for an American Army in 1917, to go to Europe. The ocean is not a one-way street. If armies, tanks, planes can go from the Americas to Europe, they can come from Europe to the Americas.

So on the theory that we can defend ourselves most easily by defending only our own territory, a Nazi army is allowed to establish itself in Canada. It conquers the country, seizes the Canadian factories, puts the Canadians to work making munitions and fortifications and air bases at well selected points along the 3,000 miles of our northern frontiers, and in the Great Lakes it places submarines and mine fields. Do we need more soldiers or less, more tanks or less, more airplanes or less, more warships or less to defend Alaska and the Pacific coast and the New England coast and the inland cities and towns from Duluth and Chicago to Detroit and Cleveland and Buffalo? By not defending Canada did we make our own defense easier or harder? Obviously, we made it much harder.

Defense Simplified

For had we defended Canada before it was invaded and conquered, we could have defended ourselves at sea and at worst on the narrow Canadian beaches and the few Canadian ports where a landing is feasible. By not defending Canada, by waiting to fight until our own soil is threatened, we did not lighten our military responsibilities; on the contrary, we committed ourselves to standing guard against surprise attack along a new, and at present undefended, frontier that is three or four thousand miles long.

Surely, it is obvious that the Canadian commitment, though it appears to enlarge our responsibilities, does as a matter of fact make it easier to defend the United States with a much smaller expenditures of military force. It is no less obvious that it will be still easier to defend the Canadian approach to the United States if the British fleet continues to rule the Atlantic Ocean from its distant base in the British Isles. For then no enemy can even start to attack this continent, and when no one can even start to attack it, a nation enjoys the maximum security at the minimum cost.

The same fundamental reasoning will be found to apply to the defense of South America.

It was Sunday, Aug. 29, 1920.

Dr. Nathan Tucker, widely known manufacturer of an asthma remedy, died in Mt. Gilead at the age of 83.

Announcement was made that on Tuesday candidates for governor or representatives of candidates from various states would visit the Harding front porch and hear an address by the Republican presidential nominee. Mr. Harding was in receipt of scores of congratulatory and approving telegrams regarding an address he had given Saturday on the league of nations. He had spoken to a delegation of Indiana and Minnesota Republicans. Statements were also issued by a number of Republican leaders who heard the address. Typical of the expressions was one by Will H. Hays, chairman of the Republican National committee, who had come here with the Indiana delegation and stood on the lawn of the Harding home with the group from his home state. He said, "Senator Harding has cut an unfaltering way straight through the tangle of the league of nations into which the bungling of the Democratic administration has led the country and into which the program of the Wilson-Cox alliance would keep us endlessly." Congratulatory telegrams came from Frank B. Brandagee, senator from Connecticut, Raymond Robins of Chicago, Jacob Gould Sherman of Ithaca, N. Y., Charles Dick of Akron, former United States senator, Ernest Bross, managing editor of the Indianapolis Star, and the Republican League of Massachusetts, through its president and spokesman, Louis K. The Rubber Situation

Some Rate It No. 1 Problem in Defense Program.

By JACK STINNETT

WASHINGTON, Aug. 29 — At the department of commerce they tell you that the No. 1 problem for the economic trouble shooters in the national defense program is RUBBER.

Funny thing about rubber—it's as American as Indian corn. But now that this hemisphere is facing a crisis, an adequate rubber supply is almost as far away as star dust.

Jack Stinnett

Rubber was unknown until wandering adventurers before the 17th century watched South American Indians playing with a ball that bounced like nothing the white men had ever seen.

Yet today, if rubber imports to the western hemisphere were shut off about 30,000,000 motor vehicle would cease to chug, the defense program would be dead, and the horse-and-buggy days (without rubber tires) would come back.

The United States uses 50,000 tons of rubber a month. Seventy-five per cent for tires. Ninety-eight per cent of the world supply of rubber comes from the Dutch East Indies and British Malaya (each produces around 376,000 tons a year). A paltry 16,000 tons a year come from Brazil, on the continent where rubber first bounced into the economic picture. Africa, Central America, other South American countries and India account for the rest.

Looking over the record and considering "any eventuality," it does look pretty black for rubber if worst comes to worst. But even though you might have a year-and-a-half of discomfort, in event of a rubber shortage, there's no more use worrying about rubber than about tin.

Synthetics on the Way

Synthetic rubbers (there are several) are well on their way. We produced 1,700 tons of usable synthetic rubber last year. If this seems only a drop in the bucket, note that we will produce 10,000 tons this year.

Under government-subsidized plant expansion to the tune of about half a billion dollars (one-twentieth of the present national defense outlay) we probably could be supplying the full demand in eighteen months to two years.

Synthetic rubber is three to five times as costly as the natural product under the present set-up. This will not be true even a year from now. It does not mean that finished synthetic rubber products will cost anything like that much more.

To conserve rubber, we could have driveless days for our 30,000,000 cars and trucks. We could use retreads when the old tires blew out. We could decrease the national speed limit (rubber experts estimate that if everybody held throttles to 30 or 40 miles per hour it would add months to our rubber supply). We even could reclaim rubber from worm-eaten rubber bands bursted toy balloons and tired blimps. Somewhere along the line we would turn to our approximately eight months' supply of raw and finished rubber.

Might Grow Our Own

It might be tough, but it undoubtedly would work, and perhaps in a year or two, department of agriculture experts, working with the natural supply in South and Central America, and California, would have a satisfactory crop of natural rubber in the offing.

The department of commerce says that if we have an enemy in the world, he had better not plan on licking us by snapping up all the world's rubber.

He might upset the rubber-tired apple cart for a while, but in the end, we'd be pop-popping along on all four wheels as if nothing had hapened.

Let 'er Roll

We Advise All Radio Orators To Ditch Manuscripts To Save National Art of Windjamming.

By DAMON RUNYON

WE DO wish the radio engineers would devise some system by which our orators can move around on the rostrum and indulge in gesticulation to their heart's content while speaking, without losing contact with their audience.

We contend that keeping a speaker fixed to one point on the platform and preventing him from galloping hither and yon while giving off his deathless words is destroying our great native art of windjamming. When a speaker's kisser is glued to a mike about the only gesticulation he can employ is the uplifted index finger in the manner of that old I-Cure-Men pose of Doc Munyan's.

Damon Runyon

A speaker ought to be able to sling himself around all over the lot to put emphasis into his gab. This not only makes him more interesting to an audience but undoubtedly assists in his lingual flow. We have seen but two speakers in these radio days who seem to have acquired the facility of gesticulating without getting too far away from the mike.

One of them is Fr. Coughlin. He crouches at his mike in the manner of Jack Dempsey approaching a fistic opponent in the old days and does his gesticulating with his coat tails. The good father can waggle his coat tails in pointing up his phrases in the most astonishing fashion. Even those who may not like what Fr. Coughlin says must admit that he is a master mikesman.

SEN. LISTER HILL of Alabama is the other speaker we saw putting on plenty of gesticulation without losing air contact. The occasion was the night in Chicago when he placed Mr. Roosevelt in nomination before the Democratic national convention. As we understand it, the heavy thinkers of the Democracy did not want Sen. Hill or anyone else formally to nominate Mr. Roosevelt, preferring that he be selected without any formal orations to give his choice more of the color of a drafting, but Hill would not be denied.

He got up without manuscript or notes, put his mouth up against the mike and turned on. As he orated he undulated out with a perpendicular motion, which is to say from head to foot, which did not carry him away from the mike as a horizontal shimmying might have done. He gesticulated with both arms, but also up and down. He raised his face frequently, as if to high heaven, and in religious fervor, yet he always scrooched down a bit so that in the raising his mouth would keep the words gushing directly into that mike.

WE DO not know that this method is characteristic of Sen. Hill, but if it is he has mastered a radio technique even better than that of Fr. Coughlin, so far as permitting physical movement while talking is concerned. Of course in the Chicago instance, Sen. Hill had the advantage of not speaking from manuscript. We think the manuscript is even more destructive of public speaking than limitations of physical movement.

It simmers effectiveness of a speech down to a matter of reading. A poor reader may make a mess of a great speech. A good reader may turn a punk speech into a forensic masterpiece. If the importance of a speech is in what is said rather than in how it is said, it would be excellent judgment on the part of a poor reader to hire a good reader to read his speech to an audience.

But of course our political audiences would not accept substitutions in that respect. They want to hear their speakers doing the reading in person. And if a speaker happens to be a poor reader and stumbles over his words, his audience puts him away as a bum orator without bothering afterward to read his speech in print, which may disclose it as a veritable gem of construction and wisdom and everything else. Contrariwise, that same print may reveal as just so much balderdash a speech that sounds terrific as unrolled by a superior speaker on the air.

WE SUGGEST that radio engineers invent a cage of some kind in which mikes are arranged at all points of the compass so that no matter which way he turns and no matter how much he bounces around, a speaker's voice will still be picked up and carried to listening ears. And to speakers we suggest that most of them will be wise if they throw away their manuscripts, loosen up, and speak extemporaneously.

Anecdotes of Ohio

By GILBERT F. DODDS

Mustered out of the colonial army, Imlay floated down the Ohio river the fall of 1782. Selecting a tract in the Kentucky country, he became a deputy surveyor within a year, speculating in land on the side. He became enmeshed in legal difficulties, however, and soon after left North America.

Imlay was involved in an intrigue with Gen. James Wilkerson and Spanish authorities in the west. Nothing is known of Imlay from 1796 until 1828 when, according to records at St. Brelades on the island of Jersey, he was buried.

Imlay is remembered for his "A Topographical Description of the Western Territory of North America," published in London in 1792. The book remains a source work for students of history.

Starting on a Shoestring

Few companies started big. And many of these eventually failed. It is not a coincidence that virtually all big companies were once small enterprises.

The soundest concerns seem to be those that started on a shoestring. There is something about the struggle to start a little business, to finance it and to keep it going that gives the enterprise staying qualities. The small proprietor who goes through this ordeal and who survives, acquires a type of executive ability that is likely to carry him far. It is significant that most successful business men have had some such training.

All but a few of the largest manufacturers in the United States started with little more than an idea. Many of them financed themselves at the outset by making a few units of their products; then they went out and sold them and thus got money to buy more raw materials.

Apparently, it does not make much difference how much capital a young business man has at the outset—though eventually, of course, capital is needed for expansion unless the proprietor is content to remain in the shoestring stage. The surest method of acquiring capital is to plow back the earnings into the enterprise. Business men who do this usually succeed; those who withdraw a large part of the profits seldom prosper.

Many businesses are built not on money but on ideas. If the basic idea on which the enterprise is founded is sound and is properly exploited, it will earn all the money the business needs, for its expansion.—John Allen Murphy, in Forbes Magazine.

BODY OF WHARTON MAN FOUND IN BAY

Harry Welter Believed Victim of Accidental Drowning.

Special to The Star

KENTON, Aug. 29—The body of Harry Welter, 45-year-old Wharton laborer, was found in a cove of Sandusky Bay at Sandusky last night, two days after members of the family had reported him missing.

Dr. E. J. Meckstroth, Erie county coroner, said this morning he had not completed his investigation and was not ready to give a formal verdict. However, he expressed the opinion unofficially that Mr. Welter drowned accidentally.

Mr. Welter had been visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Welter, who a short time ago moved from Wharton to Sandusky. His mother said that he left the home Monday and when he failed to return Monday night, she notified Sandusky police. The body, floating on the surface of the water, was found by Mrs. Oswald Zistel who lives nearby.

Mr. Welter, a World war veteran, had lived in Wharton for a number of years. Surviving are the parents and a brother, Reed Welter.

The body was to be taken today to the Bristoll funeral home in Carey but funeral arrangements have not been completed

"What American needs today is plenty of battleships, bombers, and a small, highly trained, highly paid, mechanized army—and then tend to her own business.

"Conscripting boys in great numbers in peacetime who have not lost all of their baby teeth, makes America a gutless nation in the eyes of the world."

Senate Passes Draft Bill, 58-31

2—Registered men would be subject to call for a year's compulsory military service.

3—The men called for service would be selected in an "impartial manner," and in such numbers as the president specifies. The maximum number of draftees at any one time is limited to 900,000.

The bill also provided for an increase in the basic army pay, which conscripts would receive, from $21 to $30 a month.

Exemption from service would be granted registrants who are physically or mentally unfit, who have dependents, or who are employed in necessary agricultural or industrial jobs.

Could Start Oct. 15

If the measure should be approved in substantially the same form by the house, a registration day probably would be set by the president about 15 days after the legislation became law. Then, by October 15, the army would expect to induct its first quota of conscripts, approximately 75,000 young men. If army plans materialized, 400,000 would be in training by January 1 and 400,000 more by April 1.

In its present state, however, the version of the Burke-Wadsworth bill now in the house committee differs on one big point from the senate-approved measure. It would make all men between 21 and 45 subject to registration and possible service, thus widening the age bracket involved.

Some house members predicted that the "conscript industry" provision would meet strong opposition next week, but they said they anticipated little fight on another of the final changes—the amendment of Senator Adams, Democrat of Colorado, would extend the present aircraft profit limitation of 7 and 8 per cent to cover guns, ammunition, material and other equipment.

Bucks Administration

The Adams amendment, however, ran counter to the requests of the administration and defense commission for the suspension of the aircraft and warship profit limitations now effective. Provisions for their suspension are incorporated in the excess profits tax measure which the house took up today.

Senators explained, however, that if congress approved the proposed suspension of the profit limitations, the Adams provision automatically would become inoperative.

The "big push" on amendments to postpone immediate conscription or otherwise nullify the bill's purpose found the senate conscription forces clearly in command of the situation at all times.

Maloney Plan Loses

Proposal of Senator Francis T. Maloney (D-Conn.) to defer the draft bill until Jan. 1 and order the President to issue a national call for volunteers met defeat, 50 to 35. This amendment was the rallying ground of those who wished to harmonize the views of pro-draft and anti-draft forces.

On the last day of debate, while packed galleries applauded both sides and a group of nine veiled women maintained an anti-conscription "death watch" in the capitol, the senate chamber echoed with warnings that America was taking the road to war and regimentation.

Take War Poll

The tempo of floor argument was quickened by a charge from Senator Rush Holt (D-W. Va.) that two unidentified new deal senators were taking a secret poll of the senate to determine the amount of support a war declaration resolution against Germany would have. Holt's charges were made to newspapermen who failed to gain confirmation, but his accusation stirred the senate.

Debate on the proposal giving the government power to take over plants and other facilities in the interest of national defense provoked from Senator Josh Lee (D-Okla.) an assertion that in times of emergency the government should be able to take over radio stations and newspapers "to combat Hitler propaganda by propaganda."

Would Seize Press

"I believe," he said, "the government should have power to take a man, take a factory, or even take a radio station or a newspaper for propaganda purposes if the country is in danger. You've got to fight the dictators with their own methods."

Senator A. B. Chandler (D-Ky.) denounced Lee's proposal to acquire radio and press in times of peace and declared that, far more important than keeping up with Hitler methods, was the proposition that the American people should get the truth at all times through a free press.

Ohio 45th In Volunteers

Senator Russell said that under no possible interpretation of his amendment would the government have the power to take over radio and press, but Wheeler contended the provision was broad enough to encompass both.

Ridiculing contentions of draft foes that volunteer enlistments would give America a sufficient number of soldiers, Senator Tom Connally (D-Tex.) read a state-by-state list of army enlistments from Jan. 1 to July 1 to prove that states where senators were most vocal in their opposition to the draft produced the smallest number of volunteers.

Connally said that southern states, led by North Carolina, gave the army a higher percentage of volunteers than northern and midwestern states. Southern senators almost solidly favored the draft.

Connally's list showed that Ohio, where both senators opposed conscription, is 45th on the state list of recruiting.

Out of the 2,095,788 Ohio men eligible to enlist, only 1,956 did so in the first half of this year, or .00093 per cent, Connally said.

The two states ranking lower than Ohio were Minnesota and Michigan, whose senators all opposed the draft. North Carolina, whose two senators voted for conscription, had the highest ratio of enlistments, .0045 per cent, the Texas senator said.

In addition, each school has been thoroughly cleaned from top to bottom and where there are metal roof trimmings these have been repainted to guard against rust.

Plans are to put "panic locks," devices which open a door from the inside with the slightest pressure on a flat fixture rather than turning a knob, at all the buildings. Installations already have been made at the Silver Street building.

All buildings having gas outlets have been checked for possible leaks, at the request of the Ohio Fuel Gas Co. and where escaping gas has been found, repairs have been made.

With the exception of the wiring for the new flourescent lights at Harding and the new plumbing installations in the various buildings, all work has been done by Mr. Welch and his staff.

FRENCH STRIKE AT COLONIAL REVOLTS

Oust Three Governors, Strengthen Indo-China Rule.

By The Associated Press

VICHY, France, Aug. 29—The Petain-Laval government struck back today at what it termed British - inspired rebellions in France's colonial empire by relieving three governors-general of their posts and reinforcing the French administration in Indo-China.

The powers of Vice-Admiral Jean De Cou, Petain-appointed governor-general of Indo-China, were increased with respect to control of the colony's five component provinces.

The government moved swiftly in connection with African and Pacific colonies, dismissing the governors of the Chad region in equatorial Africa, the Cameroons mandate on the African west coast and New Caledonia in the southern Pacific.

The government announced yesterday that rebellions had developed and it charged the disorders to British guarantees of economic protection to French possessions taking the British side of the war. The civil governor of New Caledonia was replaced by a military governor.

LONDON

first appeared shortly before 9 p. m., or not long after dark, and kept attacking the city, singly or in small groups, until just after 4 a. m., or just before dawn.

The government accused the raiders of dropping bombs "at random" in the attack on London, while the wide use of incendiaries on London and throughout the country caused the British Press association to describe the raid as Germany's "most venomous attack of the war against Britain."

The ministries of air and home security issued a joint communique far longer than those usually issued on night raids, listed damage done and persons killed throughout the country, although as usual exact casualty figures were not made public.

In a southwestern town, the water supply was crippled; homes and industrial property were damaged in a midland town and "some" persons were killed; industrial property, houses and "other buildings" were damaged "in a number of towns in the northeast and northwest," and casualties, although "not numerous" included "some deaths."

Issues Charge

The press association, in its account of the raids, said Adolf Hitler was sent "fire raiders to scatter their incendiaries indiscriminately in widespread areas."

"Bombing with high explosives was of a minor character," the news agency said, "but according to reports reaching the press association incendiaries were furtively showered on towns, villages and open heaths."

Just before last night's raids began the government announced the British had shot down 91 of yesterday's German daylight raiders, while losing 13 planes themselves.

Kenton's Human "Lightning Rod" Struck 8th Time

Special to The Star

KENTON, Aug. 29 — Charlie Brown, colored, of Kenton, was recovering at his home today after being hit by the eighth lightning bolt of his life. Knocked unconscious as he drove along U. S. Route 30-S, west of Kenton, Brown "subconsciously" turned off the ignition and his car coasted to a halt in heavy traffic. Passersby rushed him to the office of a local physician where he was revived and seemingly was little the worse for his experience. Last year Charlie, a trucker and onion jobber, appeared on the radio program "We, the People, Speak" to tell of being hit by lightning bolts seven different times.

Now, Brown is hoping he isn't like the proverbial cat with nine lives.

SUSPECT IN ROTHSTEIN GAMBLING MURDER DIES

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Aug. 29 — George McManus, big time Broadway gambler who once was accused of the murder of Arnold Rothstein, died of heart disease last night at his summer home in Sea Girt, N. J.

After a long and sensational trial McManus was acquitted by the general sessions jury which heard the case—but the slaying of Rothstein in 1928 still remains a mystery. The notorious gambler had stumbled out of a theatrical district hotel mortally wounded, never to disclose his assailant.

SUEZ BOMBED FOR FIRST TIME

Italian Attack Causes No Damage, British Say; Alexandria Raided.

By The Associated Press

ROME, Aug. 29—Italian planes bombed the Suez canal for the first time yesterday, the Fascist high command announced today.

Bombs were dropped on the northernmost part of the canal, between Port Said and Ismailia, the high command said, as well as on the Alcantara ferry, where the railroad line passes between Egypt and Palestine.

The daily Italian communique also reported another raid on Alexandria, Egyptian port where the British maintain an important naval base.

(A British communique yesterday said Port Said was bombed for more than an hour, but that there were no casualties and no damage.)

British attempts to invade Eritrea, in Italian East Africa, from the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan were beaten off, the high command reported. Twelve Australians of the British force were said to have been killed.

The Italians also claimed occupation of a British outpost, Fort Pollgnac, near Lake Dubat by native Italian Somaliind troops, and defeat of a British raid on Gallabat, an Italian outpost in the Sudan.

Union county's 4-H livestock judging team placed second among 32 participating. The team was composed of Elton Rausch, individual high scorer, Martin Burns and Richard Breece.

The dairy judging team from Delaware county placed first and Union county's team placed sixth among 45 teams entered. On the Union county team were Robert Kasper, Richard Boerger and Richard Wells.

The team driven by C. F. Winch of Galion placed in the money in the horse pulling contest yesterday.

When 400 boys and girls yesterday matched their knowledge of farm machinery against questions posed by a group of experts from Ohio State university's department of agricultural engineering, James Dawson of near Delaware was one of four boys who divided second prize money.

Balkan Hot-Box, French Reversal Worry Big Boys

By DEWITT MacKENZIE

Bombs raining on England and Germany almost drown out other operations but there are two matters of great importance to the battle of Britain which at the moment fall within the field of words rather than bullets—(1) the anxious efforts of the Hitler-Mussolini brotherhood to prevent a Balkan war, and (2) the growing Franco-British animosity.

The German and Italian foreign ministers, Von Ribbentrop and County Ciano, met in Vienna today with representatives of Rumania and Hungary to try to compose the volcanic quarrel resulting from the Hungarian claim to Rumanian Transylvania. A Balkan war might easily grow out of this fight, and that might represent a catastrophe for the Axis powers.

Two Good Reasons

There are two vital reasons why Hitler and Mussolini must maintain peace on the peninsula. One is that they must have the vast supplies of war materials and foodstuffs which they get from the Balkans. The other is even more important—that of keeping Russia in hand.

Some observers believe there is a chance Stalin may become involved in war against the Axis, and that is something which Messrs. Hitler and Mussolini must head off at all costs until the battle of Britain is settled.

The tenseness of the situation in the Balkans, and the great potentialities of damage to the Axis cause, undoubtedly have had considerable to do with Hitler's delay in his major attack on England.

French Grow Hostile

The increasing hostility of the French government to Britain shows signs of being a possible breeder of difficulties for England.

The charge by the Petain government that Britain is inspiring rebellion in the former's African empire is the latest development in a feud which has swelled in bitterness ever since the Allied collapse in the battle of Flanders.

The fight broke wide open when the British attacked units of the French fleet which insisted on following the Petain government in surrender.

Since then barbs have been flying in both directions, and London has been playing host to the so-called French national committee which was set up by General De Gaulle to head all "free" Frenchmen who refuse to surrender with Petain and wish to continue to fight with Britain.

Portage Co. People Face Evacuation As Army Maps Huge Munitions Plant

By The Associated Press

RAVENNA, O., Aug. 29—The tide of national defense preparations rolled up to the doorsteps of scores of Portage county farm dwellers today, forcing them to hunt new homes, new jobs or other acres to till

On 20 square miles of peaceful farmland northeast of here where crops now grow, an estimated 4,500 men will begin soon the construction of a $14,215,000 ammunition loading plant.

The property was acquired by the government yesterday at a cost of about $2 000,000 Purchase papers for the 16,000 acres were signed for the war department at Akron by Col. R. F. Valliant, chief of the real estate branch of the quartermaster general's department.

This acreage included 108 farms and 115 other parcels, options on which were gathered by a dozen real estate men over a period of several weeks

After completion of the deal, Col Valliant announced tenants on the property would be given 30 days to vacate and that construction would start at the end of that period.

The plant, to be built and operated by the Atlas Powder Co of Wilmington, Del., under a contract announced by the war department yesterday, will be completed in 10 months It was expected the project would employ northern Ohio labor, possibly some of the farm tenants affected by it.

Still to be purchased for the plant site are 3,000 acres just east of Ravenna. Options also have been asked on 200 acres in Trumbull county, acquisition of which would force Trumbull county Boy Scouts to seek a new reservation and camp

Marion Woman Is Beneficiary of Unusual Will

Mrs Wanda Gould who lives at Hotel Harding is among beneficiaries of the $1,150,000 estate of the late Mrs Clarence Brown, Toledo philanthropist who died last week, according to a news report from Toledo The will was filed for probate this week in Toledo

Mrs. Gould, widow of Clarence L. Gould who was a nephew of Mrs Brown's late husband, was bequeathed $5,000

The will provided for the distribution of $850,000 to relatives, friends and household employes and more than $300,000 to Toledo charities and philanthropic institutions

It followed the general pattern of her late husband's will, filed in 1918, with virtually the same legatees remembered Total of the two estates, it is expected, will amount to approximately five million dollars

It was disclosed that since her husband's death Mrs Brown gave away approximately two million dollars in contributions to various charities It was noted in her will that virtually every agency in the Toledo Community chest was made a beneficiary.

Virtually everyone with whom Mrs Brown came in contact was remembered in her will Besides a niece, Myra Gould Summers of Toledo, who was willed her home, her jewelry, automobiles, works of art, furnishings and $150,000 in trust, and her daughters, Mrs Brown remembered nieces, nephews, her secretary, personal maid, physicians, cook, laundress, hair dresser, grocery delivery boy, her personal nurse, operators of a hotel where she spent her summers grand nieces, grand nephews and Mr Brown's nieces and nephews.

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Madge, Cut In on Veritzen's Wife, Overhears His Tirade at the Operator—and His Ultimate Deflation.

I B[illegible] back the impulse to shout "[illegible] Veritzen, through the [illegible]. But I am Mrs. Gra[illegible] right here." From long ex[illegible]ce I know his temperamen[illegible]sibility, and his voice be[illegible] that he was in the throes [illegible] would be called a "tem[illegible]trum" in a child. Prudence [illegible]me let the hotel switchboard [illegible] or manage him, and for the [illegible] minutes I felt as if I had [illegible] seat at a cinema.

"Mr Veritzen," the opera[illegible]egan, "I think—"

"[illegible]ame!" the great impre[illegible]said, 'I am not at all inter[illegible]d in what you think. I am telli[illegible]u that I do not wish to [illegible] to anybody who may be [illegible] I wish you to get me the G[illegible]m farmhouse. Can you un[illegible]rstand that?"

[illegible] tone implied a belief that the young woman's proper habitat was not a telephone switchboard.

It was his latest manner—how well I knew it!—never directed to me nor to others, who, he considered, were on his own "social level," but familiar to his minor employes, although, to do him justice, he uses it only when in his more temperamental moods. And he makes up so royally for it afterward that most of his employes adore him. I knew that the switchboard operator would receive an apology—not in words—but in a regal tip delivered with the great man's most fascinating smile.

She probably knew it, too, I reflected, but that did not prevent her from becoming flustered at his rebuke.

"I'm sorry, Mr. Veritzen," she said, "but I'm trying to tell you—"

"Have I asked you to tell me anything?" he demanded. "When I desire any information from you, I shall let you know my wishes immediately without circumlocution—"

I grinned delightedly to myself. His last word is one of his pets, always used when he is berating somebody.

"Mr. Veritzen, won't you please listen?" she pleaded.

"I will listen to one thing," he said loftily, "and that is the voice of someone from the Graham farmhouse."

His sonorous voice was a bit raucous now — he was getting hoarse, and the girl was near nervous exhaustion.

"But Mrs. Graham is on the line! She's the party who's calling you."

He was silent for fully two seconds, while I wondered if rage or shock or possible heart failure was rendering him speechless. Then he spoke, his voice a diapason rumble.

"Do you mean to tell me that you have been keeping Mrs. Graham waiting all this time while you made such stupid, futile, clumsy attempts to tell me that news? Your manager shall hear of this. Where is Mrs. Graham? Has she been overhearing this conversation?"

His last words were hurried, and there was a touch of chagrin in them. But the girl knew better than to tell him the truth.

"No, oh! no!" she prevaricated desperately. "My line here was closed off. She's on an outside one. I'll get her on at once."

"See that you do," he said loftily but with patent relief, and then I heard the snapping of a switch key and the operator's voice.

"Mrs. Graham!"

"Yes, my dear," I said encouragingly. "My sympathy, and my congratulations!"

'I forgot to shut my switch, or you wouldn't have had to hear all this," she said with a nervous little laugh. "But may I ask you not to let him know you overheard him?"

Jupe Pluvius Aids Cleveland; Cincinnati-Dodgers Also Rained Ou

Bob Feller Gets Extra Day of Rest Before Seeking 23rd Victory.

By The Associated Press

CINCINNATI, Aug. 29—Leo Durocher firmly, yes, militantly, announced today that the Cincinnati Reds may have a 7½-game lead over his Dodgers but "nobody's concedin' nothin'!"

Raked with a cross-fire of "are the Dodgers still in there pitching or are they building for next year already?" the fire-eating manager of the boys from Brooklyn snapped back:

"This is still 1940 as far as I've heard. You Cincinnati fans got a right to your opinions and I got a right to mine and I say you got to play the season out. I'm not concedin' you the pennant and maybe you're goin' to get the surprise of your lives yet!"

The remarks are pertinent because the Dodgers and Reds open a delayed, semi-crucial two-game series today, providing the Ohio valley weather situation improves.

"I got a great ball club with me," Lippy added. "Anything you get from us you'll work for."

Paul Derringer or Gene Thompson for the Reds and Whitlow Wyatt or Lee Grissom for the Dodgers are the pitchers, managerial indecision being what it is these days.

By The Associated Press

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 29—It's about time the Indians credit Jupe Pluvius with an assist.

The stormy old man did another favor for the Tribe by granting Bobby Feller an extra day's rest before the young hurler took the mound against Philadelphia today—thereby enhancing the chances of the ace's effectiveness.

Rained out a second successive time last night, Cleveland and Philadelphia booked a double header to make up the postponed game.

Feller had been nominated to start against Johnny Babich under the lights, although the speedballer had worked three innings two days earlier at Washington. Leading the majors in victories this season, Feller sought his 23rd victory.

Al Milnar was slated to work the other half of the double bill for the Tribe, opposing Bill Beckman, the A's most consistent winner with six consecutive triumphs.

Two postponed contests with the St. Louis Browns will be played at Cleveland during a four-day open spot in the last week of the Indians' campaign. The open dates fell between series with Detroit, and Manager Oscar Vitt was glad for an opportunity to keep the club busy.

COCA-COLA CLINCHES 2ND SPOT IN LEAGUE

Defeats Post Office, 7-2, As Loop Season Ends.

Coca Cola clinched second place in the Oldtimer's league by defeating Post Office, 7-2, last night at Garfield park. Last night's activity rang the curtain down on the senior circuit's first year of organized ball and left Marion Steam Shovel holding the No. 1 spot.

The beverage boys shelled two P. O. pitchers to shelter with a 14-hit attack while their own twirlers, Steinman and Berry, were taking turns on the mound and holding their opponents to eight scattered blows.

Scores by innings and batteries follow:

Coca Cola	021 310 0—7 14 0
Post Office	001 001 0—2 8 0

Steinman, Barry and Cook; Schwadorer, Myers and Long.

DELAWARE TO BE SCENE OF TRI-COUNTY TOURNEY

Marion county teams will be eligible to participate in the tri-county softball tournament to be held at Delaware, beginning next Wednesday night, Sept. 4, Robert J. Miller, secretary of the Delaware softball association, reported today.

Delaware and Union county teams also will take part. The Marion Eagles and Prospect are among those expected to enter. Richwood, Marysville and Plain City have indicated that they will be the probable entries from Union county while Radnor, Ashley, Sunbury and Delaware are communities in Delaware county that may enter.

Bostonian Not for Sale

Manager Casey Stengel of Boston Bees wants covetous National league rivals to know that shortstop Eddie Miller isn't for sale "if I have anything to say about it."

"If the Cubs ask the price on Miller again (they failed in an attempt to buy him early this season) and I get my say," Stengel said, "they will swoon at what they hear. No sir, I've got a good infield out there now and I don't want anything to break it up."

Dykes' White Sox Embarass First Division Clubs

By SID FEDER
Associated Press Sports Writer

The only thing missing when Jimmy (do it with mirrors) Dykes opened his new bowling and soda emporium in Philadelphia the other night was for the international society of magicians to step up and present him with an engraved card as an honorary member.

If ever a fellow rated it for reaching into hats and pulling out all sorts of surprises, to the red-faced confusion of most of the American league's first division, Jimmy is the lad.

Sox Beat Boston

He's been doing it for years, too, out there with his Chicago White Sox. Right now, he's only a game away from first division as a result of his 3-2 victory over the Boston Red Sox yesterday in the only American league game to get by the rain.

Jimmy has been doing his tricks year after year with a collection of baseballers which at best, is nothing to go into ecstasies over.

When Jimmy rolls up his sleeves and starts his magic stunts, he has three eye-opening tricks. The first is his almost regular first division finish. Second is the way he and his Sox come along to chill the leaders at the most embarrassing times.

Waiting for Tribe

Third, there's the stunt of being in front this year in the season series with every other club in the league, except for the Cleveland Indians and the Red Sox.

Jimmy doesn't feel at all comfortable about the 8-4 edge the Indians hold over the Sox in games played between the two this season, and he's just waiting for the six games still to come with the Tribe.

"Y'know," he said today, "it wouldn't surprise me at all if something happened to Cleveland in those six games. In fact, looking over the schedule, you might say our gang can decide the pennant race. We play six more with Cleveland, five with Detroit and three each with the Yanks and Boston."

Phillies Counted Out

Over in the National league, the pennant race became a seven-team affair yesterday, to the surprise of no one. The Phillies, who never had a chance anyway, dropped both ends of a doubleheader to some excellent elbowing by Pittsburgh pitchers Truett Sewell and Joe Bowman, and were eliminated mathematically from the flag chase. Sewell tossed a three-hitter in the opener for a 5-0 victory, and Bowman came back with a six-hitter for a 5-2 decision.

The New York Giants climbed back into a tie for third place by trouncing the St. Louis Cardinals, 5-2, largely on homers by Jojo Moore and Tony Cuccinello. Dick Errickson's steady twirling gave the Boston Bees an 8-3 edge over the Chicago Cubs, dropping the Cubs to sixth place.

She Takes an Interest in Baseball

As co-owner with her husband, Henry Topping, of the Wanderers baseball team in Hawaii, the former Gloria Baker has baseball at heart, in this talk with Keith Cruickshank, pitcher, leading ace in the Hawaii senior league. Keith and the Wanderers will leave Honolulu soon for eight games in Havana, Cuba, and in Canada, Nicaragua and Puerto Rico.

St. Mary Gridders Prep Dai for Inaugural Game Sept. 1

Eleven Veterans Will Provide Nucleus for 1 Irish Squad.

St. Mary High school's football team is rapidly rounding into form. The initial game of the 1940 grid season looms only two weeks way. Coach Bernard Berens has been sending his 42 proteges through daily sessions at the Aronhalt lot on North Prospect street in preparation for a nine-game schedule.

Coach Berens wouldn't venture into any pre-season predictions but reported he is "well satisfied with the material."

A heavy and hard-charging line and a fast-stepping backfield will be the theme of this year's team. From the players that Coach Berens has been using in practice the nucelus of his starting lineup will be the 11 returning lettermen and several promising newcomers.

Promising Candidates

Those that have been seeing a good deal of action on the first team are: John Robbins, center; Pat Tobin and Jack Dee, guards; Jerry Herneise and Frank Huber, tackles; George Shoup, Jim Daum and Jim Schuler, ends; Ted Schuler, Frank Terzo and Bob McGinnis, halfbacks; Dave Rochford, fullback and Ray Murphy, quarterback.

Dee is the only lineman that is not a letterman although he saw considerable service last year at his right guard post. The backfield will be made up of veterans with the exception of McGinnis who is a newcomer that shows potentialities as a passer.

Illness and injuries have made their presence felt on the team. Earl Boyer a likely lineman is out for the season after undergoing an operation for appendicitis. John Robbins, veteran center, received a shoulder injury, Joe Werley, suffered a injury to his knee and Bob McGinnis has been inactive because of poison ivy. All are expected to be back in uniform soon.

First Scrimmage Set

The Saints have been going through practice on fundamentals thus far with the first "real" scrimmage session set for 9 a. m. Saturday. Joe Moore, former Harding gridder, has been supervising the line.

Candidates seeking berths on this season's Irish squad are: tackles, Carl Werley, David Seiter, Jerry Herneise, Bob Sullivan, Daum, Dick Moran Frank Hu Ed McGinney; guards, Pat T Carl Phillips, Jack Dee, Wilmes, Joe Wilmes, Ja Pfeiffer, Francis Tobin, Dan Donald; centers, John Robi James McGrath, John Huber, Werley, Tim Kelly; ends, Haubert, Robert Moloney, Ja Schuler, Kent Daum, Ja Daum, Bill O'Neill, Ge Shoup; backs, Donald Norris, Schuler, Donald Patterson. Kelly, Dan McGinnis, Dave R ford, Bob McGinnis, Arthur ris, Frank Terzo, Donald Mc Thomas Caprino, Ray Mur Ed Norris, Richard Haver.

All the home games will played under the lights at H ing stadium.

POWER GOLFERS ON TOP IN GOLF MEET AS FIELD NARROWS

16 Survivors, with Exception of Runyan, Represent Game's Longest Hitters.

By The Associated Press

HERSHEY, Pa., Aug. 29 — The boys with the power and the class were in control of the 1940 professional golf championship tournament today as the field narrowed to 16 contestants. Finals will be played Sunday.

Eighteen-hole matches yesterday cut down three-fourths of the 64 qualifiers. The survivors, excepting little Paul Runyan, represent the longest hitters in golf.

The only top-notchers who failed to get by yesterday were Craig Wood and Jimmy Demaret. Also knocked out were Jimmy Thompson and Harry Cooper.

To this point, none has played better than the defending champion, Henry Picard, who takes on Gene Sarazen today.

Dick Metz, the medalist at 140, meets former open champion Byron Nelson of Toledo and Walter Hagen opposes Harold (Jug) McSpaden.

In the other matches, Ed Dudley plays Runyan, Jimmy Hines meets Sam Snead, Al Brosch tackles Ben Hogan, Ralph Guldahl tests Jim Foulis, and the two "unknowns" of the top flight, Art Clarke of Uptontown, Pa., and Eddie Kirk of Detroit, clash.

Nelson beat Frank Walsh of Ramson, N. J., 1 up in 20 holes in his second-round match.

Two other Ohioans — Billy Burke of Cleveland and Herman Keiser of Akron — survived the first round. McSpaden defeated Keiser in the second round, 2 and 1, and Clarke stopped Burke, 1 up.

Collegians and Pro Gridders Set for 7th Contest Tonight

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Aug. 29 — Two of the nation's greatest collections of football stars will be looking for a break tonight—a break in the deadlock existing between the collegians and the professional champions after six All Star meetings.

Seventh Clash

The 1940 crop of college All Stars and Green Bay, the professional champions, clash in the seventh annual charity game at Soldier Field tonight, with a record crowd of 85,000 expected.

Since 1934, when the series was started by the Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc., the collegians and the pros each have won two games, lost two and tied two. Last year the New York Giants squared matters for the pros by defeating the All Stars 9 to 0 on three field goals.

The game will be the second in the series for Green Bay. In 1937 the Packers went down to a 6 to 0 defeat, and the pro champions have not forgotten it.

MT. GILEAD, Aug. 29—Heavy rains which washed around foundations of seven of the 10 new houses being built in Elm and Bank streets by Mt. Gilead Homes, Inc., damaged the foundations of four of the houses Tuesday night.

It was necessary for workmen to crib around foundations and to brace them to prevent collapse. Damage was estimated at not less than $1,000.

Lack of storm sewer drainage in the new section was said to be the cause of the damage. Lack of spouting on the partially finished houses and new fills made in grading up around the houses were partially responsible.

All construction work was stopped on the houses on Wednesday pending the decision made by the directors and company officials.

It was reported council will be asked to put in the necessary storm sewers at once.

MARKET TRIES RALLY, FAILS

Wednesday Spurt Apparently Fatigued Majority of Stock Leaders.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Aug. 29—Stocks tried for another rally in today's market but most seemed fatigued by Wednesday's spurt.

Slightly higher prices were posted for selected leaders at the start. There was no follow-through, however, and, near the fourth hour, trends were a bit mixed. Activity slackened considersably.

Brightness of the business picture, on the whole, served as the main selling preventive, brokers suggested.

Given a moderate lift in the forenoon were N. Y. Central, North American, Bethlehem Steel, Montgomery Ward, Sears Roebuck, Boeing, Johns - Manville, Bullard and U. S. Gypsum.

Backward were U. S. Steel, General Motors, Chrysler, International Paper preferred and Dow Chemical.

Wall street was none too happy over action of the senate in amending the army training bill to permit the government to conscript industries necessary for defense in the event these refused to cooperate fully in armament demands. The hope was expressed, though, that this provision would be eliminated before final passage.

Considered also was the estimate of the Engineering News-Record that heavy construction awards for the week ended Tuesfell 55 per cent from the near-record preceding week and were 14 percent below those of the like period a year ago.

Boston Wool

By The Associated Press

BOSTON, Aug. 29—Recently advanced asking prices for domestic wools were meeting some resistance from buyers operating in the Boston market today. A fair amount of business, however, continued to be transacted. Twelve months Texas wools, ranging in length from shorts to good French combing, were bringing 83-88 cents, scoured basis. Choice lots occasionally brought 88-90 cents scoured basis. Spot fine territory wools of good French combing length were bringing 85-87 cents scoured basis in original bags.

NAZIS HAPPY TO BE PRISONERS

These German soldiers appear to be in a happy frame of mind despite their capture by the British. The war is over for them, unless a Nazi bomb happens to hit their internment camp.

WHEAT FLUCTUATES IN NARROW LIMITS

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Aug. 29 — Wheat prices fluctuated within a range of less than a cent today, bobbing above and below previous closing levels in accordance with the flow of mill buying, profit taking and spreading and closing with small net losses.

In the absence of outside speculative interest most dealers were content to permit the market's drift, keeping their own accounts evened up as much as possible. Reports of pending settlement of the Balkan dispute caused realizing sales by dealers taking advantage of the fact that prices were about 3 cents above the season's low.

Wheat closed unchanged to ¼ lower compared with yesterday's finish, September 71½-⅝, December 74-74⅛; corn ⅜ lower to ½ higher, September 61⅛, December 57⅛-¼; oats unchanged.

PRINTING OF SIGNERS OF PETITIONS LEGAL

Judge Says Papers Can Publish Names.

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, Aug. 29—Judge Joy Seth Hurd ruled today newspaper publication of signatures to Communist party petitions does not constitute invasion of right of privacy.

He dismissed a common pleas court suit of Arnold Johnson, Communist candidate for governor of Ohio and Joseph Brandt, party organizer, who sought an injunction against such publication by the Cleveland Press. They also had asked $100,000 damages.

Judge Hurd held petitions seeking to place Communists on the state ballot in November became public records as soon as they were filed with the secretary of state at Columbus, and "can be printed or be examined by the public generally."

"Their signing was a public act for which they were responsible, and if any odium attached to signing, that was the responsibility they must bear," Judge Hurd ruled.

The press had begun publication this week of Cuyahoga county signers of the petitions.

The paper said many of those named complained they were told only that the petitions were "to keep us out of war." It offered to print a denial for any who say they did not sign.

Answers to Your Questions About the New Draft Bill

A summary of the main features of the Burke-Wadsworth compulsory military training and selective service bill follows. The measure last night passed in the senate and is now ready for action in the lower house.

* * *

Q. Who must register when the President, acting under authority granted by the bill, sets a national registration day?

A.—All male citizens of the United States and all male aliens residing therein who have reached their 21st birthday and have not yet reached their 31st birthday.

* * *

Q.—Who is liable for compulsory military training?

A.—All male citizens of the United States and all male aliens who have signed their intention of becoming citizens who fall within the above age bracket, except those exempted.

* * *

Q.—Who is exempt?

A.—No man between 21 and 31 is exempt from registration except officers and enlisted men of the armed forces and reserves and foreign diplomatic and consular agents.

Automatically exempt from compulsory training, however, are the vice president of the United States, officers of Congress and executive and judicial officers of the United States whose appointment is subject to Senate confirmation and all corresponding officials and legislators. Also exempt are conscientious objectors, although they must submit their views for consideration to local draft boards for Department of Justice review.

In addition to these exemptions, the President is authorized to defer military training and service for persons whose agricultural, industrial or professional skill is deemed vital to national defense; for ordained ministers and priests and divinity students; for men with dependents; for men physically, mentally or morally deficient.

In practical operation, these determents would be made by local draft boards working under army advice. The army high command has already said it does not intend to draft men with families at the present time.

* * *

Q.—How many men will have to register?

A.—An estimated 11,500,000 who fall in the 21-31 age bracket.

* * *

A.—If all the authorized deferments are made, an estimated 4,000,000 single men between 21 and 31 would be liable for the draft.

* * *

Q.—Would all of these 4,000,000 be drafted?

A.—No. The army expects to draft 400,000 by Jan. 1 and another 400,000 next spring. These will be selected by lot under the methods used in the World war.

* * *

Q.—How long must a drafted man serve?

A.—Twelve consecutive months.

* * *

Q.—Is there any possibility of drafted men engaging in actual combat?

A.—Yes. If the United States goes to war. The drafted men then become regular members of the army. For 10 years they are to be members of the army reserve, subject to call in crisis or war time.

* * *

Q.—Is there any way in which that period can be shortened?

A.—Yes. By serving two years in the regular army after one year of compulsory training.

* * *

Q.—What is the pay?

A.—The base pay will be $21 for the first four months and thereafter $30 a month. A man may receive higher pay if he gains promotion.

* * *

Q.—Where will men receive training?

A.—For the most part in army camps near home, but the bill permits use of conscripts anywhere in the United State, its possessions, including the Philippines, and anywhere in the Western Hemisphere.

* * *

Q.—How long is conscription to be in force?

A.—Until May 1, 1945.

* * *

Q.—Can a man furnish a substitute to avoid the draft?

A.—No.

* * *

Q.—Will he receive a bounty for being drafted?

A.—No.

* * *

Q.—What is the penalty for for false registration, evading registration or evading the draft?

A.—Upon conviction in Federal Court not more than five years imprisonment, not more than a $10,000 fine or both.

* * *

A.—Yes. Any man between 18 and 25 may enlist in land or naval forces for a year's training.

* * *

Q.—Who directs the draft machinery?

A.—The president is authorized to establish a selective service system, including local boards, and to name a $10,000-a-year director of selective service with an appropriate staff.

* * *

Q.—Can a man who leaves his job under the draft get it back upon completion of service?

A.—The bill says employers should re-employ such men. The employe has the right to appeal to District Courts if such re-employment is refused.

* * *

Q.—Is compulsory military training and selective service now a law of the land?

A.—No. The bill has passed only the Senate. It must pass the House and gain the president's signature before becoming law.

SALVATION ARMY BUDGET APPROVED

Action Taken at Board's "Get-Acquainted" Meeting.

The 1940-41 budget to carry on the work of the Marion Corps of the Salvation Army was approved and plans for the year discussed at a meeting of the Advisory Board of the Army last night at the home of Major and Mrs. Joseph Heard of 478 Cherry street. The meeting was the first to be held by the board since Major and Mrs. Heard took over the work of the local corps and was in the form of a get-acquainted dinner with the Army officers as hosts. Major and Mrs. Heard came to Marion in July from Springfield, succeeding Captain and Mrs. Stickley who took over the work in that city. Lieutenant Margaret Seevers, who came to Marion from Cincinnati was an assisting hostess.

C. Z. Zachman, chairman of the board, presided for the business session. Major Heard presented the itemized budget which was unanimously adopted by the board. It will be presented to the Marion Community Foundation, Inc., of which it is a participating agency at an early date.

Major Heard talked on the work of the Army and discussed with the board tentative plans for the year's work. With winter coming on the relief situation will be a major problem to be dealt with, the discussion brought out. Mrs. Heard gave an informal talk expressing her pleasure over coming to Marion. Lieutenant Seevers, whose principal duties will be the advancement of the young people's work here, also expressed herself as being happy in her work here and is especially pleased with the large corps of young people with whom she is working.

MEMORY OF THE MOON

YESTERDAY: In town Constance meets Ellen MacKelvey who runs a dairy farm. Constance drives back to the ranch with Pedro Taylor wondering how to cope with such a friendly enemy.

Chapter 12

Barbecue

FROM boxes the delighted Dolores brought riding breeches of twill; boots and sombrero; and a silk shirt of sapphire blue with a golden yellow kerchief for her throat.

"El Cabrillo colors," Dolores explained.

Constance tried to stifle her thoroughly feminine love of clothes. Was Pedro trying to put her so deeply in his favor that she would agree to sell?

But when she was dressed, she whirled before the mirror and was pleased with what she saw. Meg had gauged her measurements accurately; even the boots fit smoothly.

"I look like a colored poster in front of a dime theater," she laughed, and went out to find Peter Taylor waiting for her.

"Muchisimas gracias," she sang out, and bowed low before Pedro.

"My word, the gal spenkes Spanish," chuckled Pedro. "Now turn around and look at Pancho. He's waiting a word of approval."

Constance caught her lower lip between her teeth as Juliano, festively attired, appeared around the corner of the house leading a beautiful palomino, his coat pale golden tan, his main and tail a creamy white.

"Pancho the beautiful," cried Constance and ran toward the horse, unaware of the cries of warning from Juliano, Taylor and a few guests who were drawing near.

"Madre de Dios," murmured Juliano fervently, as Pancho, after one startled, head-tossing neigh and swift baring of teeth, dropped his head to nuzzle the sapphire blue shoulder.

And—"Holy mackerel," sighed Pedro, who had sprung across the path, white of face.

"That settles it," announced Mrs. MacKelvey. "The girl may be a throwback, but she's a Cabrillo as well."

Constance looked up from her caressing of Pancho, to fling—"I'm polyglot—no, Juliana, don't hold him, I can mount, now watch—"

Pancho made a full swing, but Constance had one foot in the stirrup and by the time he was around she was seated, flushed, laughing, then sobered by the look on Pedro's face.

"Cabrillo," he agreed, and Meg, who had been in the background, anxiously addressing her patron Saint, murmured "That needn't make you a piebald mule."

For a moment the two stared angrily at each other. "Trrry to remember," burred Meg, "that history taches us the Irish are half Spanish: remember the Moors with their high, fine steppin' horses brought us a love of horse flesh. And above all, Peter me lad, don't be a jackass."

Pedro grinned and finding his horse, mounted and rode up to Constance.

"We'll wait for introductions until we reach the grove," he told Constance. "I think the cavalcade's ready. You, as a Cabrillo, should lead the parade alone, but I'm not trusting you. You're quite apt to lead us to Maria's.

They rode up and behind them some seventy-five neighbors fell in.

Constance pulled up on a hill and looked about her. Never had she seen such sunshine, such s blues ky, such gold-and-purple hills.

"Pedro," she laughed, "I could love you for planning this—"

"Don't," Michael," he returned, soberly. "Don't say that. I can't spend the rest of my life eating barbecued beef."

"Would you, Pedro?" she teased.

"I am afraid—" he stressed the word and she remembered the night of their first meeting, "that I would."

"For the sake of your digestion," she sparred, "I withdraw the statement .... oh, Pedro, is that the grove down there?"

Kinship

It was the grove. Live oak shaded it, though the sun was merely golden and not warm. Scented smoke arose from it, and men in white aprons and caps moved about tables spread under the trees; tables heaped with baskets of bread and platters of salads; gay confections and tall bottles of wine.

Constance met her neighbors. She was warmed by their reception. She found kinship with these leather-face men and sunburned women. But she wondered at the girls of her age and younger. They didn't like her. They were affable, a few were sincerely glad to meet her, but there were others who looked at her with hostile eyes.

And then she understood and a chill touched her happiness for the moment. She was only one of a dozen who know the fascination of young Peter Taylor.

But no chill could live with Pedro on one side and Mrs. MacKelvey on the other, and Meg, who had come ponderously up on a horse built upon her own lines, hovering in the background.

Constance sat at the head of the table, as the first Don Cabrillo had sat in the early days, dispensing hospitality. In the little arena beyond the grove, she watched the bull-dogging contests, the roping and outlaw riding, and she, the Cabrillo, handed out the awards.

Pedro didn't compete. "He can outride and outrope any man here," Mrs. MacKelvey whispered, "and he's too good a sportsman to show them up."

The day ended all too soon. Gray fog came up to peer over the rim of the coast range, and the party mounted.

Constance rode with her neighbors. Somewhere behind her, Pedro was riding with a fluffy-haired little blond girl who plainly adored him, and just in front of him a red haired girl, dashing, bold, thought Constance, was daring him to race.

Pedro accepted the dare.

Stiffly, holding Pancho in with all of her strength, Constance watched the race, contemptuous and a little angry, while Pedro, "made a fool of himself," she thought. Didn't he know that girl wanted him to catch the reins of her horse an draw her close; couldn't he see?

Of course!

Mrs. MacKelvey rode up. "Why don't you come on home with me now," she suggested. "Pancho's fresh. We can take a short cut and be there in an hour."

Constance welcomed this chance. She said goodby to her guests at crosstrails, and, conscious of Peter sitting motionless on his horse watching her, rode away with Mrs. MacKelvey.

Once she looked back. Peter had wheeled away from the girl with the red hair and was riding back to El Cabrillo alone. Constance wondered why she felt so triumphant. Pedro really meant nothing to her .... permanently.

'Solid Shoulder'

The MacKelvey ranch lay behind the first range of mountains and was free of heavy fog. Constance's first impression was of pristine neatness; of acres confined into proper sections by white fences; of white barns set precisely in their lots. Even the cows gave the impression of impeccable grooming.

"They are groomed," Mrs. MacKelvey affirmed. "They are washed and brushed before each milking.

It was milking time, and Constance was led through vast white caverns with spotlessly clean cement floors. No picturesque milkers squatted on three-legged stools; the milkers were electric, operated by remote control in the hands of one man. And the milk traveled by tube to a pipe which ran through the barns to a depot, where it poured into cans on wheeled flats, to be rolled to waiting trucks.

"It's all so efficiently handled," Constance marveled.

"Efficiency and economy are synonymous," Mrs. MacKelvey assured her. "I learned that through costly experience. Here are the workmen's homes; rather nice, don't you think? I let the wives plan the homes they were to occupy. They have free rein with their gardens.

"Another thing I learned," she mused, "is that contented wives mean contented workmen, and contented workmen are efficient."

The house was roomy, cheerful with light paint and flowered chintz. The living room was lived in, books everywhere, a grand piano heaped with dog-eared music.

Tea was served before a roaring hearth fire and afterwards, when the shadows grew thick, the talk drifted to personal things. "But with the responsibility of this ranch, one might call it an enterprise, on your shoulders, don't you ever feel the need for something to lean upon?" asked Constance.

"Mrs. MacKelvey shot her a quick whimsical glance. "I know that feeling," she admitted. "My parents were touched with the gypsy's wand, happy-go-lucky musicians. I married for security. I married a rancher. Perversely, Jack was no more dependable than any other men...ah, but the land. I found in it the warm, solid shoulder I needed."

Constance slept on this thought. She would lean on El Cabrillo.

She awoke refreshed, and on a daylight tour of the dairy ranch, put the questions to Mrs. MacKelvey as one business woman to another.

When she started home, midmorning, she felt able to conquer the world. Michael had raised money. She would too, and then —" Pancho, honey," she patted the satin shoulder, "we'll show them what a throwback can do."

Pancho twitched a skeptical ear.
